

GERMANS FIRE NAPLES TO SLOW ALLIED PUSH

The War
Today...By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

BRITISH Prime Minister Churchill has the knack of hitting the nail on the head, as he again demonstrated yesterday on the manner in which he drove home the points of his notable two-hour war report to the house of commons.

Outstanding was the premier's warning of the need of cordial relations between the Anglo-American Allies and their Russian colleague—a subject which long has been driving many timid statesmen to the hurricane cellar. He broached the matter by announcing that not only will there be a conference of representatives of America, Britain and Russia "at an early date" but that this will be followed by a Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill parley, and of this latter project he said:

"No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments, for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great Allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion."

Mr. Churchill thus approached a great issue which is causing increasing anxiety—that is, the need of ironing out important differences in viewpoint between the Anglo-American partnership and our Soviet Ally. These problems are largely political and unless they are solved they will bode no good to a post-war world which will be entering a new epoch in the progress of mankind.

To my mind the fundamental fact to which all parties must adjust their outlook is that Russia's star seems to be leading her straight to domination of most of Europe and Asia after this war. Look at it whatever way you wish—politically, economically or militarily—and the answer is the same. This vast, self-contained, invulnerable empire will be the most powerful unit of the eastern hemisphere. That is a decree of fate, and the only way to meet it is to recognize it and strive for a frank understanding.

AMONG the questions on which the Soviet and the western Allies appear to be rather far apart is that relating to the method of handling the defeated Axis countries, and especially as regards the treatment of Germany. America and Britain demand unconditional surrender, which would be followed by military occupation.

Moscow, on the other hand, has nodded approval of the activities of German officers and others in Russia who have formed committees and are trying to persuade the German people to overthrow which they hope might secure a negotiated peace. The signs are, too, that the Soviet doesn't care for the Allied plans for supervising Italy.

Allied Leaders In Italy Plot Next Moves

Eisenhower, second from right, commander-in-chief of Allied forces in the Mediterranean area, with other leaders of the Allied forces in the Mediterranean, listen as an officer explains a military move on a map in one of the corps command posts on the Italian front. WHEELER BILL
DEFEAT SEEN

Move Underway In Senate
To Shelve Father Draft
Deferment Proposal

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—A quiet move was underway in the senate today to shelve the Wheeler father draft deferment bill without waiting for the testimony of presidential adviser, Bernard M. Baruch who recently surveyed the entire manpower problem.

Though informal and still incomplete a poll showed a sharp trend away from the proposal which once had the overwhelming approval of the military affairs committee, scheduled to hear Baruch this afternoon.

By agreeing to delay debate on the bill until Tuesday, the senate apparently snubbed any chance for congressional action, either way, before the Oct. 1 deadline set by the war manpower commission for the general induction of fathers.

Senators concerned with the broadest phases of the nation's manpower problem recalled Baruch's comprehensive report on the west coast labor situation and looked to him for a thorough discussion of labor policies by war contractors and of ways to step up industrial efficiency.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), author of the bill which would grant pre-World War fathers blanket deferment for the remainder of 1943, was not optimistic that Baruch's testimony would strengthen his cause.

"Mr. Baruch is an administration man," Wheeler said. "The committee so far has seen only one side of the picture."

The house military committee decided yesterday to await senate developments before acting on a father draft deferment measure sponsored by Chairman May (D-Ky.).

Bronx Zoo Lion Victim
Of Own Kin's Hunger

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—A five-year-old lion, Johnnie, was dead at the Bronx zoo today, victim of his brother's hunger for an eight-pound chunk of horse meat.

As 60 spectators ringed the African plains exhibit at feeding time yesterday, William Dalton tossed great pieces of raw meat to five lions, all brothers. Harry and Johnnie leaped for the same piece and pounced to fight it out.

The clashing and biting lasted about five seconds and Johnnie retreated with the meat. Lying down, he pawed at his mouth and throat and then was still. A third lion took the meat.

Dr. Leonard J. Goss, veterinarian, found Johnnie died from a fractured larynx. The lions, obtained from Frank Buck, had been quartered together since 1940.

Salem Will Turn Its Clocks
Back One Hour On Sunday

Falling in line with most other Ohio communities, Salem will turn its clocks back one hour Sunday when Eastern Standard time becomes the official time again.

Formal action to abandon Eastern War time in favor of the standard time was taken by city council Tuesday night in adopting an ordinance calling for the return to "slow" time at 2 a. m. Sunday.

PLAN RESURFACING OF SEVEN STREETS

Improvement Would Cost
$11,024, City Engineer
Advises Council

City council is considering a request for an expenditure of $11,024 for the asphalt surface treatment of seven principal streets in town, a job recommended by Councilman Harry Vincent, chairman of the streets, alleys and sidewalks committee. City Engineer F. S. Eachus and Service Director Frank Wilson.

After the engineer submitted his estimate last night to council members, Vincent recommended that the job be undertaken since asphalt had been removed from the government's list of restricted materials.

However, another member of the streets committee, Arch H. Wentz, objected to any hasty authorization, explaining that neither he nor H. W. Peay, the other committee member, had seen the engineer's figures.

The estimated cost of applying two coats of asphalt and limestone chips, by streets:

Washington ave., $747; S. Union ave., $839; Woodland ave., $528; W. State st., $1,450; S. Ellsworth ave., $1,060; Franklin st., $2,000; E. State st., $4,400.

COLUMBUS MAYOR
LOSES NOMINATION

COLUMBUS, Sept. 22—Mayor Floyd F. Green was eliminated in Columbus' non-partisan mayoralty primary election, unofficial final returns showed today.

Green, a Republican, ran third in a field of six, trailing James A. Rhodes, Republican city auditor, and Jacob E. Sandusky, Democratic sheriff.

Rhodes, who piled up an early loss in yesterday's balloting, won 16,642 votes and Sandusky, 11,205. Green, with 8,354 automatic votes, a chance to be on the ballot for the two-candidate runoff election in November.

Other candidates finished thus: Hayden Edwards, Republican and real estate executive, 8,256; Arthur P. Lamneck, former Democratic congressman, 6,782; N. A. Thatcher, Democrat and former county auditor, 1,863.

Held In Shooting

NEW LEXINGTON, Sept. 22—Clem Rose, 78-year-old farmer, was free today under $1,000 bond pending grand jury action on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Jack Watson, 17, from shotgun wounds which Sheriff Clair Butts said were received in Rose's melon patch Sunday. The youth's father filed the charge. Rose pleaded innocent.

HEAD ALLIES
WORLD STAFF

London's Formal Approval
On U. S. General's Appointment Awaited

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—Disclosure that Gen. George C. Marshall has been nominated for supreme command of British and American troops around the world made it fairly obvious today that the hour for storming Hitler's European fortress is approaching with express train speed.

And, judging from the global nature of Anglo-American strategy, Japan's day cannot be far behind. Announcement of the appointment of the U. S. army chief of staff to the most extraordinary military assignment in history—climaxing a flareup of discussion over high command shifts—is expected, barring any last minute hitches, to be made soon by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Await London Approval

That he has been chosen for the post, subject only to final approval by the London government, was established by Kirke-Simpson of the Associated Press coincidental with new evidence that a massive invasion of western Europe is being mounted in England.

Marshall's responsibilities as field commander, as decided upon by the President and prime minister at Quebec, will be worldwide, but his first tough task will be the destruction of Nazi Germany.

Churchill declined to comment in the house of commons today on the report. "No, sir," was the prime minister's reply when Major Charles Taylor asked him if he had any statement on the matter.

One competent London source said "Marshall would be one of the best leaders in the world for such a post." Unofficial comment generally was favorable.

Marshall's projected appointment, particularly with respect to the European theater, is designed to assure close coordination among all the armies now in action as well as those slated for assault on what Mr. Roosevelt said would be shown in due time to be the vulnerable parts of Hitler's fortress.

Members of Combined Staff
Such coordination has been supplied to date by the combined chiefs of staff, of which Marshall is a

REACH 60 PERCENT
IN BOND CAMPAIGN

Sales: $1,150,904.90
Goal: $1,915,000

With sales of $20,000 yesterday, Salem had reached a total of $1,150,904.90 or 60 percent of its goal of $1,915,000 in the Third War Loan drive. The number of sales is 3,154.

Thus it is apparent that much work is to be done in the last eight days of the campaign if the remaining $764,000 needed is to be obtained.

Those who have signed pledges were urged again today to go to an issuing agent at once to complete the purchase. The two banks, especially, have a great many pledges awaiting the signers' appearance to make the purchase. If these purchases are left until the last minute it may be impossible to complete all by the end of September.

Columbiana county, which has been lagging in the standing in Area I embracing 26 counties in this section of the state, has jumped into ninth position. Marion county has gone over the top with 103 percent of its goal, the only county in the area to attain this distinction to date.

Story Of Hess' Flight From Germany Told By Sec. Eden

By E. C. DANIEL

LONDON, Sept. 22—The full story of Rudolf Hess' flight to Britain disclosed today that more than two years ago, when Britain still was near its lowest depths in this war, the third in command of the Nazis declared Adolf Hitler wanted to call off the fight without making any "oppressive demands" on Britain.

The story of the No. 3 Nazi's fantastic flight "on a mission of humanity" to Scotland was told in an official government statement made available to commons today by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

It disclosed a specific list of six peace terms, one of which stipulated Hitler's refusal to negotiate with Prime Minister Churchill, who was accused of planning the war since 1936.

What Germany wanted from Britain, Hess said, was a free hand in Europe and especially with Russia.

Upon his arrival in Scotland in May, 1941, Hess told the Duke of Hamilton that "The Fuehrer does not want to defeat England and wants to stop fighting." He said he made the flight without the knowledge of Hitler.

Still Prisoner of War
The official statement said nothing about Hess' present whereabouts or his state of health, but it concluded:

"Hess has been dealt with as a prisoner of war since his arrival in this country and will so continue to be treated until the end of the war."

If the peace terms offered by Germany were rejected, Hess told officials, Hitler expected to destroy Britain utterly and keep the country in a state of permanent subjugation.

Eden related:
Before he reached Scotland in 1941, Hess told the Duke of Hamilton

Bond Drive Spurred!

It's People Like
These Who Insure
Victory For Allies

When the Third War Loan drive goes over the top—it will be people like these who will be able to say proudly, "I helped do that."

A local business man has made a bond purchase almost every day since the opening of the drive on Sept. 9 and for the days he missed he has made up the next. His total purchases now stand at $562.50.

A woman hobbled into one bond issuing agent's office yesterday morning, explaining that this was her first trip outdoors since the cast was removed from a broken ankle—and she made that trip to buy a bond!

Another woman came in to put the proceeds from her sale of garden vegetables into a War bond, remarking that she needed some new clothing, but had decided to make her old outfit do another winter and to invest her money in democracy.

Every bond salesman and worker could tell the same story—because the people who are buying bonds with every cent they can scrape together are those people who live next door and around the corner and in the next block—they believe in fighting this war with the soldier, instead of letting him fight alone on far-flung battlefronts.

Army Plane Forced Down Near Alliance

A light Army training plane, piloted by Capt. D. S. Watts, enroute to its base at Patterson field, Dayton, to Middletown, Pa., pancaked in a field just east of Alliance on Route 62 at 2:30 a. m. today.

The pilot was uninjured and the plane only slightly damaged. Propellers of the twin-engine craft were smashed.

Capt. Watts told Mt. Union authorities, who dispatched a squad of military police who are bivouaced there, to guard the plane, that the plane developed motor trouble and ran out of gas.

Navy Probes Man's Fall
From Unidentified Plane

SELINGROVE, Pa., Sept. 22—Naval intelligence officers joined today in an investigation of the death of a man who fell from a high-flying airplane near here and landed in a meadow.

The plane continued westward without slowing and there was no indication of its identity, point of departure or destination.

At Philadelphia, the fourth naval district reported that two service identification tags were found on the body, one bearing the name of a naval officer and the other the name of a coast guardman.

A district spokesman added, however, that "we know no more about the man's identity than we do about the plane, which is nothing."

Allied Armies Pressing
Forward From Salerno
Bridgehead

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS
IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 22—The French high command said today an American unit is helping French forces drive the Germans toward the northeastern corner of Corsica, and already more than 1,000 of the enemy have been slain.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 22—Huge fires and demolitions scarred Naples today as the Germans hastily threw a defensive ring around the city to retard Allied armies steadily pressing outward from the Salerno bridgehead.

The great metropolis of nearly a million persons in southern Italy was described officially as overhung with smoke.

A military spokesman said the enemy was establishing a strong defense line on the approaches to Naples from the south and east, but the extent of their demolitions and near the city appeared evidence that the Germans hoped to hold back Allied attack toward the city from the Salerno area.

Refugees passing through the Allied lines confirmed the Allied belief that the Germans were looting and destroying the city, perhaps as a step toward new withdrawals. The refugees said that the Nazis had instituted a reign of terror with thousands of neapolitans dying within the last few weeks for violations of a stringent curfew edict. Epidemics of typhoid and typhus in the waterless, hungry city were adding to the horror, they said.

The Fifth army meanwhile fought its way steadily east and northeast from Salerno with American troops capturing the towns of Campagna and Montecorvino-Rovella while the British chased fleeing Germans from the town of San Cipriano.

Germans Flee Corsica
On Corsica French soldiers and native patrols pursued a German garrison estimated at 12,000 men toward the eastern shores while American Liberator bombers blasted at the principal avenue of German evacuation from the island—the Corsican harbor of Bastia and the Italian port of Lghorn.

The military spokesman said he had "nothing to add" to Winston Churchill's statement yesterday that American troops had landed on Sardinia, but he did reveal here that whatever units were sent to that island intended only to cooperate with an Italian division which already at Premier Pietro Badoglio's command took control and compelled the Germans to flee.

Another menace to the Germans on the Italian mainland, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army, drove northward and inland and occupied the key highway and rail center of Potenza.

Occupation of Potenza, which is a junction point of five main roads, gave the Allies control of the entire inland highway and rail systems south of a line extending eastward from Salerno.

Enemy Losses Heavy
A military spokesman, declaring the first phase of the Salerno battle now is definitely over, added "we have inflicted upon the enemy heavy losses in personnel killed and

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Salem people had brought home to them in many ways Monday the need for lending their spare money to the government to help prosecute the war. They saw how soldiers spend their days in training camp and the weapons they must have when they are sent to one of the many battle fronts. They were thrilled by the military parade and stirred by the rally in the evening, especially by the wounded veterans who told how the boys "over there" were giving their all for their country.

What they didn't hear that might have given them even more inspection to buy more War Bonds was the statement by Major Sailors, commander of the Military Police company which visited Salem, that every one of the nearly 200 officers and men in his company take 20 per cent of their Army pay with which to buy Bonds. There was a note of pride in his voice as he made this statement at the conclusion of the rally Monday night, and it is easy to understand why he is proud of his men. Twenty per cent of a soldier's pay means relatively more to him than to the civilian who is drawing more pay than ever in his life, and doesn't have to face what a soldier must face.

It's something to think about. Most of us haven't been doing nearly as much to "back the attack" as we should, but there is still time to buy another bond during the Third War Loan drive.

CHANGING TIME

City council's decision to turn the city's clocks back from daylight savings to standard time, beginning next Sunday, is in line with action being taken by other Ohio cities. In fact, the ordinance was withheld until council could determine what other cities in this district planned to do.

A provision in the ordinance to revert to daylight savings time at the end of April for the summer months will save special legislation against that time. Some cities already have indicated they will do the same thing, and it is assumed most of them will make the change about the same time.

The only objection from urban residents to time changing is the confusion caused when all cities do not make the change. Farmers will continue to object to daylight saving at any time as it does them no good and actually interferes with their farm work. If cities are going to continue the time change for summer months, some effort should be made to make it universal. Some Ohio cities did not adopt daylight savings time this summer, and the expected confusion resulted.

EMERGENCY SHIPS

The navy's pride in its great and still growing strength is reassuring to civilians on every count but one. Civilians can't be blamed for wishing that something could be done about the tendency to build ships—all kinds of ships—in national emergencies.

Unit by unit they are the most expensive war equipment needed in wartime. A tremendous force of manpower is needed to fabricate them, and back of the fabrication is a vast network of industrial production. Yet, in World War II the United States has had to tie up an important section of its war production potential in the construction of something that is not essentially different in design from its counterparts in World War I, when the same thing happened. Costs in all categories have been raised by the effects of war. And between the wars, shipyards lay idle and their skilled manpower was dispersed.

The navy and the United States are proud of being able to build ships the hard way when they are needed; they have done it twice. Before they are forced to do it again, a national policy recognizing that American dependency on naval strength for survival entails a systematic shipbuilding schedule should be given consideration by both major political parties. As long as ships must be built continuously for American security, they should be built in the most, not the least, advantageous way.

FIGHTING FRENCHMEN

The return of France to World War II, a promise born in the battle of Tunis and fulfilled in the action against the Germans on Corsica, is a good omen for the rehabilitation of the French republic. At last, Frenchmen have the privilege of fighting their common enemy, instead of each other.

The unity they must achieve before France can live again may be found in battle. As they start back home with an army that Prime Minister Churchill says is expected to reach a total of 400,000, they are the nucleus of the new France that will rise from the ashes of the debacle in 1940.

Meanwhile, the Italians are demonstrating in many small ways that they are learning to think of themselves as allies, instead of as a conquered people. In the German satellite countries and in the neutral nations, the line of separation between the minorities that sided with the Axis and the majorities that always secretly hoped for its defeat is growing sharper.

Throughout Europe the omen for rehabilitation is good. The return of France to the war against Germany—not merely as a government-in-exile but as an effective fighting force—is some of the worst news that Hitler, his generals and their military backers have heard since they lost the war in Russia.

SOLDIER AND HIS NEWSPAPER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—President Roosevelt's contention that in this war there is "no such separate entity as the home front" is illustrated by the Army's efforts at home to get news to the troops abroad.

So closely is this tie-in figured in military operations that in planning the Sicilian invasion General Eisenhower requested linotype machines, presses and paper to be taken on the expedition.

One week after Palermo fell army newspapers were being printed in Sicily.

There are more than 700 camp newspapers, at home and abroad, provided by the Army with general news and weekly clip-sheets containing cartoons and home town news.

Those papers have names like the round-up printed in New Delhi, the Bleat in Australia, the Midnight Sun in Alaska and the White Falcon in Iceland.

The camp newspapers are in addition to Yank, the army weekly, which has headquarters in New York but is printed now in Iran, Egypt, India, Australia, Hawaii, Panama, Trinidad, Puerto Rico and London.

Outlying editions, made up in New York, go to Greenland, Iceland, Bermuda and Newfoundland.

Daily the Stars and Stripes is published in England, Cairo and at Algiers, Oran and Casablanca in North Africa. The same paper is published twice weekly in Sicily.

Each week more than 80,000 newspapers are distributed to troops at home and in foreign theaters to keep them informed of current campaigns.

Photographs and highlights of the week's news are printed beside the maps on whose reverse side is told a story.

Germs Cause Trench Mouth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

FOR A while it was called "trench mouth," and it may be called acute pyorrhea. Technically it is called Vincent's infection, after the French bacteriologist who discovered the germs which cause it. It is an inflammation of the gums, especially near the tooth margin and beginning with redness and swelling and a little pus formation; it can go on to local gangrene and considerable tissue loss.

It is caused by two germs which are nearly always found together—one is a bacillus and one a long, curly spirillum. One of them or a combination of them is a natural gangrene producer and that is where the trouble begins.

When it is said that the condition is due to infection with these germs, the statement leaves out another factor, perhaps two that are really more important than the presence of the germs themselves. Because from everyone's mouth—no matter how clean and healthy—it is possible to culture some Vincent germs. They are on the surface of the gums or teeth, and do no harm until they penetrate the tissues and this penetration is due to a lowering of bodily resistance, perhaps poor diet. The other possible factor is that you are using your own Vincent germs, but if you happen to get someone else's in your mouth you are liable to trouble. Lowered bodily tone then and cross infection are the important factors in acquiring the disease.

It would be natural in view of these factors to suppose that at the present time there would be an increase in the amount of cases with Vincent's infection. Great numbers of the population are crowded together in war plants, they are living in cramped quarters, they are subject to fatigue, they get what kinds of food they can, they eat off plates and with knives, forks and spoons that are often not adequately cleaned after the last customer was served. Lowered bodily resistance and cross infection are present everywhere, just as they were in the trenches when the condition got its name of trench mouth.

If taken early when the gums are just beginning to be acutely red and swollen, it can be successfully stopped in four or five days by an experienced dentist. Later on when destructive changes have occurred, restoration is not so easy.

Rules for Treatment
A dentist connected with a large industrial plant has these rules for treatment:

1. Observe complete dish, glass and silverware isolation. Boil dishes for three to five minutes in soap and water.
2. Eat and drink only from paper dishes and cups in public restaurants.
3. Throw away toothbrush and do not brush teeth until told to do so.
4. Eat plenty of green leafy vegetables. Force fluids, juices and milk.
5. Use a mild, antiseptic mouth wash every hour.
6. Use a cathartic or an enema to keep the bowels regular.
7. Make regular visits to dental clinic.
8. Permit no girl with Vincent's infection to handle food or dishes in the kitchen.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. L.: Do you think there is any injury to the system from food cooked in aluminum vessels?

Answer: No. A lot of wild-eyed, ignorant cranks have been trying to scare people into this belief for several years, but there is nothing whatever in it.

J. E. Y.: Is taking Epsom salts and lemon every day safe in reducing weight?

Answer: It is safe, but if that is all you do—if you do not keep to a diet—it will not reduce weight.

B. R. C.: I love raw garlic, but

Amazing results in building STURDY BODIES!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

YOUNG people, especially those of a grammar and high school age, are prone to be deficient in stomach digestive juices and red blood.

A growing person who is operating on a 60 to 70% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

In such cases Nature needs extra help. Organic troubles or focal infection, if they exist, must be corrected. Tissue foods must be digested and rich, red blood must be present to build sturdy bodies.

SSS Tonic is especially designed to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient, and to promote those STOMACH JUICES which digest the food so the body can make proper use of it in tissue building and repair.

These two important results enable the body to make use of the food as Nature intended. Thus you may gain a keen appetite . . . firm flesh . . . body energy . . . mental alertness!

Build Sturdy Health and Help America Win
Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and in side research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. SSS Co.

Discretion Is Better

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill.—A laborer who couldn't make up his mind was helped to a quick decision in the Justice of the Peace Court of G. F. Kirby.

Asked if his plea was guilty or not guilty as charged, he said "Not guilty," asked for a preliminary hearing, and sat down.

After obviously hard thinking, he rose and again approached the judge. "What would I get if I said guilty?" he asked.

"Sixty days," the judge said decisively.

The prisoner muttered and shook his head. "Not guilty," he said, and stalked back to his chair.

They're calling home

It could only happen in the United States. And it does happen every night. Thousands and thousands of boys in camp talking to home by Long Distance. The voice with a smile at the switchboard. The thoughtful people who leave Long Distance circuits free for his use in the evening. The pleasure of the home folks when the call gets through. These are some of the things that make this a good country to live in. Give the boys a break between 7 and 10 each night. That's about the only time the service men have to call.

WILDCAT 13 by TOM GILL

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
Drew, boy, I'm praying you never see the day when you'll be wondering in your heart what right you had to ask any woman to marry you."

"Does that matter?"
Gloria shook her head. "Not now. Nothing matters, now that I've heard you tell Tom you loved me. When you said that, I felt something inside me bursting with joy, and with pride that it should be you. Tell me again you love me, Drew, and I'll never be afraid."

"I'll love you always." His arms swept around her. "Don't ever be afraid." His lips moved through the softness of her hair. "And I'll never leave me."

"I never will. You know I never will."

He felt the racing of her heart against his own, the soft, unbearable warmth of her lips on his, the eager vibrancy of her body as she stood on tip-toe, raising her face to his.

Time ceased. A new world had been born for them, a world closer to ecstasy than Drew had ever known or dreamed, bringing a tenderness, a compelling desire to shield and protect this tall, dark-haired girl in his arms, to give her this same measure of inexpressible happiness that she was giving him.

And something of that hope and that aspiration he tried to voice to her while he held her and the moon touched the rim of the foot-hills and the singing of the frogs grew still. The rising mists told him it was late, but he dared to break the spell. "It's our first night on earth," he told her, "the first night of our lives that really matters." Half-reluctantly he added, "Tomorrow I'll see your father. It's better that we tell him now."

But she answered, "Not yet. Later." As if suddenly cold, she moved closer within his arms; then, smiling, she added, "But you had better tell Mr. Cutter I'm not going to Aruba."

It was hours afterward when they climbed up from the river. The truck outside the shack told them Molly and Spud had returned, and on the porch they found Molly, still sewing beneath the light.

She looked up at them and smiled. "Just how two people can go swimming without getting wet—"

Drew laid his hand on her shoulder. "Molly, I want to tell you something."

"As if you had to! With the two of you looking as if you'd been on a round trip to heaven itself." She took the girl's face in both her hands. "May the Mother of God watch over you, dear."

Flinging both arms about the older woman, Gloria kissed her. "Molly," she whispered, "I love him."

"Of course you do." Molly's blue eyes were softer still, and something like compassion was in her voice. "Love him all you can, dear. It's only while you're in love that life makes sense. And now you'd better get some sleep."

Along with Molly, Drew seated himself on the step beside her, until with her quiet smile, the woman asked, "Well, Drew, what now?"

"I want to make her happy, Molly," he answered. "The one thing I want most out of life is to make her happy, always. How does a man do that?"

"No man ever has," the woman answered. "You'd better get some of those fine ideas out of your head, Drew."

He looked up in surprise. "You're angry."

"No, I'm not angry. I'm thinking of her. You know, Drew, it might have been better if you'd never told her."

"Why?"

"Look at it this way: You're asking Gloria to put all her happiness and all her future into your hands. She's burning her bridges behind her—and what have you to offer beyond hopes and promises? Oh, I know you'll be good and kind to her, but at heart you're a gambler. You can win or you can lose, and you can keep on going; but I don't want to think of a girl like Gloria being from hand to mouth in the old camps of the world."

"Suppose that well doesn't come through? Suppose Franz Alter ruins you? You'll owe money that will take you years to pay. People will remember you as the man who didn't make good, and that won't help your reputation as an oil explorer. You'll be looking for a job, and they're not always easy to get. It's one thing to starve yourself, Drew—it's a far more bitter thing to have someone you love hungry and in want, and you not able to help her."

"Drew, boy, I'm praying you never see the day when you'll be wondering in your heart what right you had to ask any woman to marry you."

The low voice ceased, and Molly sat looking out toward the river, while memories came flooding in upon Drew—all she had gone through because of her own love for Spud, all the years that had left her tired and worn. And in that moment he saw how right she was, and how vastly significant that well had become. He had to succeed! Failure now might mean years of privation for the woman he loved.

Unconsciously he raised his head. Like an audible symbol came the steady rumble of the drill, and he knew that from now on that sound would hold for him new meaning, new promise. Down there, buried deep beneath the slow accumulation of a million years, might lie the answer to all his dreams. Somewhere down there lay—what?

And from that day on, as if a malicious destiny had been waiting for the time when success meant so much to Drew, a train of mishaps began to slow down the work and raise the costs. At the four-thousand-foot level Sergei twisted off a drill stem, and it took a long, tedious job of fishing to get it out. A week later Cutter telephoned the ominous news that the cost of materials was going up; and Drew spent most of his remaining funds contracting for pipes, casing and fuel oil.

But the crowning calamity was the flood. With the dry season well along, Drew had felt safe in locating his derrick a few feet back from the Rio Bravo. During the early weeks of drilling not a drop of rain had fallen, but now one of those sudden, unpredictable cloud-bursts struck the upper valley, and two hours later Drew's men had barely time to leave for the safety of the savanna, taking with them what they could.

The swirling waters receded as quickly as they had come, and with somber eyes Drew and Spud surveyed the wreckage. The engine would have to be taken down and cleaned of silt. Bags of cement had been rendered worthless. But, worst of all, the two secondhand boilers, coming suddenly in contact with the cold water, had burst. One was useless; the other could probably be welded, but the cost in time and money would be so great that Drew wondered if he had not reached the end.

He went down to the company camp, and with the help of Gessner, a friendly contractor, borrowed fifteen hundred dollars on his equipment. Not another cent could he raise; and that evening, sitting on the porch with Spud and Molly, he was as near despair as he had ever known.

"We can buy another boiler," he told Spud, "and have nothing left over, or we can try to limp along with one boiler."

Spud set whittling a piece of bamboo. "I wouldn't worry about that other boiler."

"Someone better worry about it." "I bought a boiler today."

Blankly Drew looked at him. "What with?"

"With cash money." Spud examined his carving critically. "Weeks ago I knew we were going to need all the money we could get, and I borrowed every dollar they'd let me against my life insurance."

Drew protested. "But that was for Molly! You had no right—"

Molly herself interposed. "Look, Drew. If you want to be a gambler, you have to gamble. It's too late now to be squeamish about where the money comes from. I've taken care of myself for several years—I ought to be able to go on for the rest of my life."

It was an immense relief to know that they could go on drilling, yet the knowledge that Molly's security was now hopelessly jeopardized bore Drew black company for days. They were in up to their very necks now, and each one knew it; but Drew felt it more keenly than any. To gamble his own money and his own reputation was one thing, but to bring this added hazard to Molly was a bitter pill to take. He felt like a man on a treadmill. It was too late to go back; the only thing left was to go forward.

So the drilling went on. Day after day, down by the river bottom the boilers hissed and the drill thumped its way foot after foot toward the deep horizons where Drew hoped to find pay-sand. Twice the increased pressure told them they were passing through areas of high-pressure gas pockets, and a sense of mounting tension and excitement began to grip the workers. Here at these levels where unknown forces were being encountered, anything might happen.

From now on Drew increased the weight of the mud stream that flowed to the drill, testing each separate tool to prevent delay from faulty bits or drill pipes, and each morning both Drew and Spud checked the blowout preventer to see that it was in instant readiness. Life in the little jungle camp lay focused on that slowly descending shaft of steel. They were preparing to attack an unknown enemy whose strength and ferocity could not even be guessed.

Then without warning the enemy struck—struck with that most dreaded weapon of the oil field—fire.

Motor Chief Lauds School Patrol Boys

Thousands of young men in America's armed forces received their first training in citizenship responsibilities and had their first opportunity to develop leadership qualities as members of School Safety patrols. A. P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club declared today in announcing the issuance of the September AAA-OSAA school safety posters and safety lesson units for teachers.

Paying a deserved tribute to the boys and girls serving on School Safety patrols, the new poster is: one of the new 1943-44 AAA-OSAA series to be issued monthly this school year, dramatizing the fact that children, too, are contributing to the war effort.

WE WORK FOR VICTORY TOO!

Titled the "We Work for Victory, Too," series, each poster depicts children engaged in an activity related to the war effort, at the same time practicing a common-sense rule of safe walking. The September poster shows children obeying a School Safety patrol member while an Army jeep passes in the street.

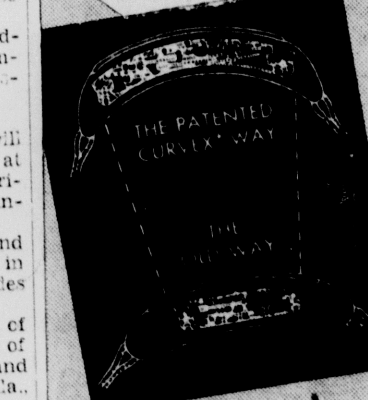

"Our School Safety patrol members," Morris said, "are rendering an important wartime service on the home front, in preventing traffic accidents involving children which would tax already overburdened doctors and nurses and overcrowded hospitals."

"Service on the School Safety patrol is splendid training for it develops a sense of responsibility and leadership qualities which help the patrol member greatly in later life."

"The new poster is accompanied by graded lesson sheets for teachers, suggesting ways of emphasizing safe walking rules in the classroom. These lessons are being prepared this year for the AAA-OSAA by the safety experienced staff of the Fulton school, Cleveland safety curriculum center for the Cleveland school system."

Malta, strategic British island no larger than Martha's Vineyard, has resisted Axis attack for over two years with the enemy 58 miles away and the nearest British base 1,000 miles across the sea. Malta has had over 2,500 air-raid alerts, and has destroyed or damaged at least 550 Axis aircraft.

MacArthur Ready To Cooperate In Pacific Command

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 22.—Reports that the new Southwest Asia command of Lord Louis Mountbatten may subordinate the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur were recognized officially today by MacArthur in a statement expressing willingness to fill any role assigned him and strongly defending his concept of Pacific strategy.

British and American press speculation on the matter began immediately after the Quebec conference, at which Pacific strategy was discussed at length although General MacArthur was neither present nor advised.

One particular paper predicted the Mountbatten command would include the Southwest Pacific Islands and that he would review Southwest Pacific strategy.

Should Be Hit Hard
"I have no personal military ambitions whatsoever and am perfectly content in such role as may be prescribed for me," General MacArthur said today in a statement which expressed confidence that Japan should be hit hard at key holdings instead of rolled back slowly and at great cost from island to island.

The statement was issued while MacArthur's jungle troops on New Guinea were exploiting swiftly their victories at Lae and Salamaua and while heavy air blows were being struck ahead of newly-won islands in the Solomons.

MacArthur has been directing the New Guinea operations from the field and, since the new offensive opened June 30, he has had overall command of the operations personally directed by Admiral William F. Halsey in the South Pacific. "Island hopping, with extravagant losses and slow progress—some press reports indicating victory postponed as long as 1949—is not my idea of how to end the war as soon and cheaply as possible," the statement said.

Rather, he favors "massive strokes against only main strategic objectives, utilizing surprise and air-ground striking power supported and assisted by the fleet."

his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Rich, Sr., of the Lisbon rd. He is stationed at Camp Breckenridge Ky.

Mrs. Betty Jane House Metts has returned to the home of her parents on E. Fourth st., after spending eight months with her husband, Tech. Sgt. Paul W. Metts, stationed with the U. S. Army Air Corp. at Davis Monthan field, Tucson Ariz.

Munitions Output Gains In August

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Munitions output spurred ahead in August, scoring its biggest gain since April, the War Production board reported today, and now "appears to be getting its second wind."

Chairman Donald M. Nelson's monthly report said overall arms production went up 4 per cent over July, while the total of warplanes delivered jumped from 7,373 to 7,612. Heavy bombers gained 11 per cent and fighters 5 per cent.

Deliveries of naval vessels hit a new all-time record, climbing 40 per cent over July, and total work done on naval ships, ordnance and equipment passed the one-billion-dollar mark for the first time. Des-trover-escort deliveries ran 20 per cent ahead of schedule.

Nelson has gone to London in an effort to further the integration of American and British production. The report was drafted before his departure but was not made public until today.

Aircraft output, while gaining only 3 per cent in number during the month, went up 7 per cent in value and weight—a fact which Nelson said "dramatizes the trend toward heavier models, especially bombers."

Nelson said plane producers have achieved "what is of paramount importance to the fighting forces, improved quality."

NORWALK, Sept. 22.—Norwalk will turn from Eastern War to Eastern Standard time on Sept. 25, city officials announced today following approval of the change by city council.

Peter Milliron, 64, Dies
In East Liverpool Home

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 22.—Funeral services will be held here Thursday for Peter Milliron, 64, one time pottery worker, who became owner and operator of an interstate trucking, coal, sand, concrete, oil and gasoline business.

Widely known throughout Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, he developed extensive holdings which began with a horse and wagon.

Although he had little education, his signature, "P. M." was good for large sums of money in the Tri-State district.

He was president of the Peter Milliron Sand and Gravel Co., the Peter Milliron Transfer and Storage Co., and the Peter Milliron Oil and Gas Co. A daughter, Mrs. Oscar Boch, survives.

The original American Expeditionary Force in North Africa required 700,000 items of equipment and supplies.

Ohio Marine Pilot Missing 16 Days; Rescued from Japs

HENDERSON FIELD, Guadalcanal—Capt. Sheldon Hall, red-haired Marine pilot, whose plane was shot down while returning from a mission on which he got two Japanese Zeros, returned with a remarkable story after being missing 16 days.

Wounded in the left wrist and fingers by gunfire from the Zero which shot him down, Capt. Hall, whose home was in Ottawa, O., said his plane hit the water traveling fast and the next thing he knew "I was in the water, alongside my inflated rubber boat."

My parachute lay neatly in the center of the inflated rubber boat and my life jacket was inflated, also. How I got out of the plane before it sank and did all that I'll never know. I must have been in sort of a daze.

Late the next day he landed on an island and started exploring it after a night's sleep in the jungle.

"Suddenly I came upon two Japs," he continued. "I had just crossed a ditch and was within three feet of one of them. They were jabbering. They had quite an arsenal of guns hanging around the sentry post. What I wouldn't have given for a hand grenade."

"I ducked down and crawled out of there. I turned back and finally came upon an abandoned native village. I spent five days there. My food was mainly bananas and pawpaws."

"Still seeking signs of life other than Japanese, I traveled farther north. I found another abandoned native village, in which I located some old magazines and literature left by some missionary."

"Finally, I made my way to a point where a flying patrol boat rescued me."

A graduate of Findlay college, Findlay, O., Hall is officially accredited as an ace. His record lists six Japanese planes downed in less than three weeks of aerial fighting in the Solomons area.

The most troublesome hayfever period lasts from the middle of August until the first killing frosts.

Ohio Pen Escapee Plans Long Hike Back To Jail

COLUMBUS, Sept. 22.—If Ohio penitentiary officials want to know how the hitch-hiking is these days, they can keep a watch on Springfield for Ralph Schimpf of New-ark, and his report on midwest traffic. Schimpf, 27, told Omaha, Neb., police yesterday he would deliver himself to Warden Frank Henderson since the state wouldn't send anyone to Omaha to bring him back to serve the remainder of an auto theft sentence. He walked away from the Lebanon, honor camp Sept. 3. He was picked up in Omaha on a minor charge.

Quota Club Hears Talk By Presbyterian Pastor

Dr. Raymond D. Walter spoke to members of the Quota club last evening at the Memorial building on "Post-War Planning."

He cited the fact that backward nations now are undergoing great changes due to better education. He declared that the post-war world will need to be founded on justice first, then kindness. A world court should be a reality, and sufficient military strength to curb any aggressive nation should be maintained.

Club members voted to purchase a bond during the Third War Loan drive.

The dinner table was decorated with bouquets of mixed flowers and was in charge of Miss Alice Gladden and Miss Leeta Gibson.

INFANT OSU TEAM FACING SEAHAWKS IN GRID OPENER

Coach Paul Brown Will Learn How His Poor Little Boys Fare

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Sept. 22.—If that graying colonel, Alvin (Bo) McMillin of Indiana, hadn't already extracted all the paths from his "my poor little boys" phrase, you'd probably find Coach Paul E. Brown of Ohio State's Bucks borrowing it for this year.

The big, bad Bucks of 1942, winners of the Big Ten and national titles, are just the baby bucks this season, short of their terrific talent and facing a future which Brown describes as "confused."

In last year's finale, O's walloped the Pre-Flight Seahawks of Iowa by 42 to 12 to make it a nine-loss-one season. This Saturday the Bucks meet the Seahawks in the opener. Against the 32-18 winners over Illinois, Brown will send five juniors and six freshmen, each of the latter 17 years old.

Backs Arg Freshmen
All his backs are freshmen, and his two passers have never thrown a ball in competition. An end drops back to do the punting, and a third string linemen is injected into the lineup to kickoff. None of the backs has been farther back than a line-backer on pass defense.

The five juniors, only one a regular on last year's powerhouse, have been deferred in the draft because of such items as marriage, asthma, punctured eardrums and varicose veins.

Faced with all that, and nine major games in nine weeks, Brown grins:

"This will be an amusing season. No one knows what will happen, but it will be fun to watch these kids — most of them just three months out of high school — develop into big-time. They're good boys, and we may surprise a few folks somewhere along the way."

Sprint Champion
Heading the buck attack will be Dean Sensenbaur, 175-pound freshman half-back and passer from Urichville, O., and Ernie Parks, huge Negro half-back from Canton, Ohio, who is the Ohio high school sprint champion, stands six feet one inch, weighs 195, and is a pass-snatcher.

All the holdovers from last year are in the line. They are Bill (Deacon) Willis, Negro tackle and first stringer last season; Gordon Appleby, second team center; Bill Hackett, third team guard; End Cecil Souder of the second stringers, and Jack Dugger, a third stringer of 1942 who moves to end and takes over the acting captaincy.

The schedule: Sept. 25—Iowa Seahawks; Oct. 2—Missouri; Oct. 9—At Great Lakes; Oct. 16—Purdue at Cleveland; Oct. 23—Northwestern; Oct. 30—Indiana; Nov. 6—At Pittsburgh; Nov. 13—Illinois; Nov. 20—At Michigan.

Post-War Outlook

Target Shooting Believed Destined For Rosy Future

WASHINGTON — If you believe the signs of the times, there will be another big boom in the shooting sports—rifle, pistol and shotgun—when the several million American boys in the service finish their job. And it's going to be the biggest boom ever heard from gun lovers.

Already the effect of this war on shooting interest can be noted. The National Rifle Association reports its membership at an all-time peak despite the loss of members to service, practically no competitions, and guns and ammunition as scarce as hen's teeth.

The real boom will come when gun-conscious American soldiers again return to civilian life.

Up to 10 million men will have had experience with guns, possibly for the first time. Because in this war at least 80 per cent of the men have a rifle of some kind—Garand, Springfield, carbine, automatic arm or what have you. They have been trained in the use of that weapon and, undoubtedly, many will want to continue their shooting as a sport.

Hitherto unrelated branches like the anti-aircraft and air force are receiving aerial gunnery training based on both the rifle and shotgun and, having gotten a taste of the action and interest provided by the scattergun sports, many will want to get a taste of skeet and trap with an occasional venture into the wing shooting field.

But probably most important to the future of shooting has been the number of uninitiated citizens reached through the National Rifle Association's elaborate Civilian Small Arms Firing schools. These schools are giving basic rifle and pistol marksmanship instruction to men of draft age, men in the service and in the State Guard and Minute Men organizations.

This interest in firearms and its associated sports will be further spurred by the younger generation of boys and girls who have received early training in high schools and summer camps under intensive programs of the N.R.A., the Boy Scouts, the V.F.W. and American Legion and other similar organizations.

It's simply a matter of the country again finding out that it is fun to shoot.

Dime-of-Every Dollar Pro- posal Calls For Post- War Refund

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—A tax program that would take at least another dime out of every dollar of taxable individual income—but refund about 13 cents after the war—has been presented by the treasury to President Roosevelt for his opinion.

To keep lower bracket taxpayers on a pay-as-they-earn basis under such a program, the 20 per cent withholding levy would have to be hiked to at least 30 per cent.

The Treasury's plan calls for individual income taxes to yield at least $8,000,000,000 of the $12,000,000,000 in new 1944 revenue demanded by Mr. Roosevelt. The remainder would be accounted for from equal increases in corporation and excise levies.

The income tax phase entails increases in all brackets but most notably a 100 per cent jump in the present 13 per cent first bracket surtax. However, the present 3 per cent net victory tax would be integrated in that levy, together with provision for a 50 per cent postwar refund.

Thus the basic rate—now 6 per cent normal, plus 13 per cent first bracket surtax, plus 3 per cent net victory tax, a total of 22 per cent—would be 6 per cent plus 26 per cent, a total of 32 per cent. Of that amount, however, 13 per cent would be paid back after the war.

Should Mr. Roosevelt reject the program, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau probably will offer an alternative proposal calling for stiff increases in Social Security taxes. These now are 1 per cent for both employer and employee but are scheduled to double Jan. 1 unless Congress acts as it has before to postpone the increase.

captured and in equipment." Many prisoners taken in attacks which already have wiped out the last vestiges of German lines to the east of the original beachhead were found to be non-German even though from enemy combat units. Ordinarily in the past, even in Tunisia, Poles, Czechs and other non-German Europeans who had been impressed into Hitler's armies were relegated to non-combat roles and the military spokesmen drew the only possible inference: "It would appear to indicate a serious German manpower shortage."

The capture of Potenza brought to light one of the Italian campaign's boldest exploits by a small British patrol which stowed away on an Italian train and rode it northward to the very outskirts of that rail and road junction while it still was in enemy hands.

Hit in Hills

The patrol hid in the hills directly overlooking the town and stayed there three or four days, sending back what the military spokesmen called "very valuable information of every German activity in and around Potenza, all of which was instrumental in our capture of the town."

Capture of Campagna carried the American forces 20 miles inland from Salerno to a point about six miles northeast of Eboli, capture of which was announced yesterday.

San Cipriano is about eight miles northeast of Salerno and Montecorvino is about 12 miles east of Salerno.

The town of Potenza, which fell to the Eighth army, is a vital road junction approximately 50 miles due east of Salerno and midway between Italy's eastern and western coasts. It is more than 50 miles from the Gulf of Tarentum.

The Northwest African airforce continued to smash at targets in the battle zone, at communications behind the enemy lines, and at harbor installations at Leghorn and Bastia, on the northern end of Corsica. Only two Allied planes were reported missing.

The sky over Naples, meanwhile, was dark with smoke, and from Allied positions across the bay it appeared the Nazis were continuing the program of fire and demolition from the security of their hastily-organized defensive ring around the city.

Has Japan Got The Jitters?

Government Prepares To Move Tokyo Offices, Improve Defenses

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Sept. 22—The Japanese government has decided to prepare "for the moving of government departments, industrial establishments and the civilian population from Tokyo as well as other important cities in the interest of improving their defense," the Tokyo radio said today.

The broadcast listed a number of drastic measures, including total mobilization of the civilian population and the abolishment of age limits to make all persons liable for national service, which it said were announced today by Premier Hideki Tojo and the government information office "in view of the decisive phase upon which the war will enter during the coming months."

In addition to the evacuation of the Japanese capital and other important cities to strengthen "the defense of the country," the government announced these measures:

Bolster Air Defenses

Increase of anti-aircraft defense forces, especially the "air protection in industrial regions."

Special measures for the protection of government buildings and factories in Tokyo and other big cities of the country.

Strengthening of government control over all industry.

Centralization of traffic on land and water.

In one of the gloomiest broadcasts to come from the Japanese capital, the announcement said the aims of the measures were:

"The Japanese nation in all its classes and profession must fully understand the seriousness of the present internal and external situation and must be inspired by an unbending will to victory."

"The nation's entire strength must be concentrated on the armaments industry, especially on the strengthening of the Japanese air force."

"Strict self-sufficiency of Japan and Manchukuo as regards food supply must under all circumstances be assured."

"Plans for a thorough-going consolidation of the defenses of the Japanese motherland must be drawn up without delay."

The broadcast said all holidays were cancelled.

The mobilization of students would no longer be deferred, the broadcast continued, and the "employment of women labor will be extended."

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

Underlying the issue of the post-war handling of both Germany and Italy there is, of course, the very big question of what form of government these countries ultimately will adopt for themselves. From what fount will they draw their inspiration?

Then there's the question of the Balkans, which Russia regards as within her sphere of influence but which also figure in Britain's interests in the Middle East. An over in Iran (Persia) the old, old rivalry between Britain and Russia for domination of this strategically situated state is working overtime, as was made quite clear to me during my recent visit to that country. More than incidentally, many observers hold that Russia has her eye on the Persian gulf to provide her with one of the warm water ports which she needs so badly.

So it goes, and the further we proceed in surveying the position the more apparent does it become that there must be a mighty lot of give and take among the Allies if grave difficulties are to be avoided. That must be negotiated before the end of the war, for afterward may be too late.

principal member. But military observers have long expected that when the time for numerous and large scale actions approached this remote control system would be supplanted by a single, one-the-spot director.

Some ranking officer such as his deputy, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, might be named acting chief of staff.

The speed with which climatic military operations are developing furnished the theme for much of Prime Minister Churchill's speech to parliament yesterday. Churchill, who spoke with a sure knowledge of what we have in trained men, planes, ships and other munitions, disclosed that the offensive in the Mediterranean is running ahead of schedule.

Authorities here expect that Marshall as Allied commander with immense armies and airforces at his disposal will brook no delay in making sure that the attacks come at such places and times as will keep Germany off-balance and in retreat. It has been said of him that one of his cardinal principles is never to give the enemy a chance to recover his footing once he has lost it.

HESS' FLIGHT STORY

ton, he tried to arrange a meeting in Lisbon and three times previously attempted to fly to Dungavel, Scotland, near the Duke's home. Hess said he met the Duke at the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

The last time he attempted a flight was in December, 1940, but he was turned back by the weather and other factors.

He did not want to come at the time of B-17 successes in Libya, he told the Duke after he was incarcerated at Maryhill, barracks, that he had come to Britain on a "mission of humanity."

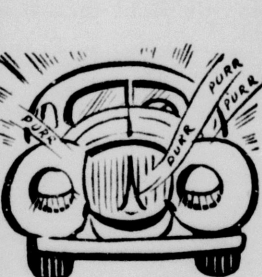

Hess insisted he came to Britain without Hitler's knowledge.

He told Hamilton, who interviewed him on May 11, 1941, at Maryhill barracks, that he had come to Britain on a "mission of humanity."

Hamilton, who was a wing commander in the RAF and did not call having met Hess before, flew to London and reported the conversation.

Hamilton told the authorities he believed the prisoner was Hess. This fact was confirmed by I. A. Kirkpatrick of the foreign office, who had known Hess and who talked to him May 13, 14 and 15.

Hess' aim was to convince responsible British persons that England could not win and its wisest course was to make an immediate peace.
